Earning Potential

Tutaj zmieniłabym Twoje pierwotne £22,000–£30,000 / £40,000–£70,000, bo aktualne dane są bardziej zniuansowane.

Najnowsze dane Graduate Outcomes pokazują, że średnie wynagrodzenie absolwenta Psychologii około 15 miesięcy po studiach wynosi około £26,485. W osobnej analizie Prospects mediana dla absolwentów Psychologii wynosi około £25,715, zależnie od metodologii i grupy danych.

Dlatego na stronie dałabym:

Earning Potential

£25,000–£30,000+

Typical early-career salaries for psychology graduates and related roles.

£30,000–£45,000+

With experience, professional development and progression into specialist roles.

£47,000–£75,000+

Experienced qualified psychologists in professional roles can reach significantly higher salaries. For example, qualified clinical psychologists in the NHS currently start around £47,810, with experienced roles reaching approximately £74,896.

£75,000–£105,000+

Senior and consultant-level psychology positions can reach these levels, depending on specialism, experience and responsibility.

To jest moim zdaniem dużo lepsze marketingowo i jednocześnie bezpieczniejsze prawnie, bo pokazuje potencjał zarobkowy, ale nie robi klientowi obietnicy: „skończysz studia i jutro będziesz psychologiem za £70k”.
